Deformations and stress distributions in tunnel intersection areas are more complicated than those in common tunnels. The literature on deformations and stress distributions in tunnel intersections, in which the intersecting tunnel is in a different section, is limited.

Deformation and mechanical characteristics of tunnel ...

where F_{smax} is the limiting shear force at the soil-pile interface, F_n is the normal force, c_i is the cohesion along the interface, ϕ_i is the friction angle of the interface, p is the pore pressure (interpolated from the target face), and A is the area associated with an interface node.
